The Impeachment Trial.

From the Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette.

There had been rumors of a refusal, on the part of the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of a nation of thirty millions, to recognize the authority of the slip of paper sent up to him by the messenger of a small body of grave, peaceful legislators, and handed over as informally as one might hand an invitation to the next party. But as the time approached, men gradually and without any apparent cause for changing their opinions, came to see that there was no danger. It would be an American to dispute a constitutional authority, and Mr Johnson—whatever his crimes or his follies—was an American. Some wild stories there were of the mysterious batteries crossing the Long Bridge, and of dread designs entertained by the handful of marines at the Navy Yard, but of all the curious crowd that gathered at the Capitol to day, not one of average intelligence really doubted that, at the proper time and in the proper manner, the ruler of thirty millions, not more in obedience to the necessities of the case than in conformity with the genius of American institutions, would submit himself to the Court that was to try him, and decorously ask of it such indulgence as might be needful for his defense.

To such a spectacle—without a parallel thus far in the world's history—thoughtful men throughout Christendom were turning their eyes. But the audience that actually gathered within the chamber where the Court assembled, scarcely accorded with the great occasion. They were pretty girls and ambitious mammas—the wives and daughters of Congressmen—crowding to witness the scenes in the Senate Chamber, as they might go to the opera or the newest play.

One fortunate enough in the competition with these favored classes, to secure the coveted ticket of admittance, would observe as he passed through the morning mist that made the gay avenue sombre in spite of itself, a notable contrast to its appearance on some other memorable days. The people were not there, for example, as they were when the long procession wound down the street and up the Capitol Hill, conducting Abraham Lincoln to his second inauguration; or when, in great and mournful congregations they stood a few weeks later, while his bier went by. Instead, were showy equipages, liveried footmen, the glittering carriages that bore our sentimental classes—such aristocratic fruits as our Democratic institutions quite often yield.

IN THE SENATE CHAMBER

Inside the capitol one found perfect order. Policemen were everywhere. At every entrance the tickets were demanded, and when one had passed through the curious crowd that loitered before the paintings in the great rotunda, the lobbies and passages were found less crowded than on any interesting day of ordinary legislation. Within the Senate chamber was a scene less brilliant than many another it has witnessed, yet imposing in its significance, and historic evermore. The semi circular rows of desks stood in their usual places, and at them sat the representatives of the States, the members of this highest court ever organized, quietly considering the disposition of their Diplomatic Appropriation bill, and the question whether they should pay a gratuity to the family of a faithful clerk. But before them, in the little vacant space between their desks and the presiding officer, stood seven scarlet covered chairs, beside a table strewn with law books and papers, and, on the other side, confronting it, stood another table, while outside the desks was provision for seating a body larger than the Senate. The galleries did not hold, as on a smaller but more imposing occasion, in another country, which the genius of a great historian has pictured for all time, "gathered together from all parts of a great free, enlightened and prosperous empire, wit and learning, the representatives of every science and of every art," but they were resplendent with grace and female loveliness. From a single division looked down the Ministers of the most important States of Europe. Directly opposite them was a motley collection—men of genius and men of brass, men that had their hands upon the magnetic keys that reached the intelligent opinion of the world, and men who were the warts and excrescences of a noble profession—all disorderly and talkative, clambering over benches, laughing and joking, and playing practical jokes—the most uncertain, monitous, acute, remorseless of all observers—the representatives of the press.

OPENING PROCEEDINGS

The morning hour passed away in trifling business. A solemn stillness had come over the noisy galleries and busy desks—a silence that could be heard—while the petition of the Chapin went up that the verdict of the High Court might be such as the high court of Heaven would approve. But the close of the prayer was the signal for a fresh outburst of chattering in the galleries, and the proceedings on the floor were devoid of interest.

At last, as some routine business was concluded, the strong, rasping tones of the Vice President rose over the hum. "The hour having arrived, under the order of the Senate, the chair is now seated for the Chief Justice of the United States, sitting in the matter of the impeachment of the President." As he closed, the Chief Justice, in his silken robe, entered the chamber, and advanced to the vacated seat—"as noble a picture of reposing strength," to quote from an elegant writer, "as has ever been seen upon earth." The Sergeant-at Arms made proclamation. There was some little blundering on the part of Mr Howard, who seem to have charge of the routine in the Senate and to be incapable of learning it, but after he was ruled out of order, the journal of the previous proceedings of the Court was read, and some motions of form were made.

There now appeared at the door of the Chamber the array of prosecutors chosen by the House as its representatives in the management of the impeachment. The Sergeant-at Arms again made proclamation, and then, escorted by this officer, they walked down the aisle, and took their places before the Court. A swarm of members, unmindful of the proprieties of the occasion, followed them in, in advance of the entry of the House, to appropriate the available seats.

The Secretary of the Senate read the return of the Sergeant-at-Arms, on the writ served by him upon the President, and then came from the chair of the Chief Justice the order "The Sergeant-at Arms will call the accused."

It was a proceeding unparalleled in the history of governments among men. Before this assembly of peaceful Senators, stood their plain, unarmed civil officer, calling to their bar the Chief Magistrate of a nation whose flag floats on every sea, whose territory stretches from ocean to ocean, whose army lately numbered a million of soldiers. "Andrew Johnson, President of the United States—Andrew Johnson, President of the United States—Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, appear and answer to the articles of impeachment exhibited against you by the House of Representatives."

The name had been heard before on momentous occasions, within the same gilt and gaudy chamber. The accused had stood there in a moment of profound personal peril, to declare that, if he were the President of the United States, and if Senators upon threatening accusation should execute their threats, he would try them for treason, would convict them of treason, and, so help him God, would shoot them for treason! From the same galleries, now filled with cold or hostile spectators, had risen electric applause. Where now the Chief Justice sat, there sat then the man who was soon to become the rebel Secretary of War. In a rage, Vice President Breckenridge ordered the galleries to be cleared. The door keepers strove to execute the order. As the spectators sullenly retired, a Tennessee Unionist sprang upon one of the benches and shouted, "Drive us out if you will, but first let's have three cheers for Andrew Johnson, of Tennessee!" In an instant a cloud of hats and handkerchiefs darkened the air, and cheer after cheer rang through the chamber, while the startled Senate, Davis and Mason, Toombs, Hunter and Slidell among them, listened in silent amazement. And the scene of to day, in the same chamber, is scarcely seven years later!

A member of the administration, then just entering upon his duties, in the fervor of his gratitude for the noble stand, made haste to write—"I am delighted to hear that Andrew Johnson is only the modern spelling of Andrew Jackson." The man thus eulogized is now the President of the United States, and the man who penned the warm hearted eulogy sits in the chair of the Chief Justice, to preside over a trial that threatens to depose him in disgrace.

And what a trial it is! Charles first was tried, but it was after he had been defeated in a bloody war, and made prisoner by the armies of the Court that pronounced his verdict. Louis Sixteenth was tried, but it was as a prisoner, caught in an effort to escape. Louis Philippe was borne in on a revolution, and borne out on another. James Second was forced to abdicate, but it was after the army of his successor had made its way into his capital, and he had been driven into exile. Yet here is a revolution in peaceful progress under our eyes. Here is a ruler of a nation greater than Britain under Charles or James, greater than France under Louis the absolute commander, this day, of its army and navy, called into Court, as one licensed of petit larceny might be called—to answer to charges that, if proved, are to depose him. In no other nation in Christendom to day could this result be accomplished without a devastating war, and the upheaval of all institutions. Here it is a spectacle for the pretty girls of the capital and their beaux.

Three elderly gentlemen walk in at a side door, and take their seats at the table opposite that of the Managers of the Impeachment. The House of Representatives is announced, and the rest of its members appear, preceded by its officers. When the bustle of their entrance has subsided one of the elderly gentlemen at the table opposite the Managers rises, and addresses the Chair with deferential respect. "Mr Chief Justice, my brothers Curtis and Nelson and myself are here as counsel for Andrew Johnson, President of the United States. I have his authority to answer to the articles of impeachment, and with your leave will read." And he read a respectful reply from the President, acknowledging the summons and asking time to prepare its defense. It is the Chief Ruler of thirty millions bowing to the power of legal revolution imbedded in the Constitution.

This is the notable feature of the day, and indeed of the century, and of all the centuries. The history of the civilized world is without its parallel—its possibility is the noblest tribute ever paid at once to the matchless wisdom of our Constitution and to the most hopeful characteristic of the American people.

An Extraordinary Creature Discovered in the Forests of Mississippi.

From the Vicksburg Herald.

About twenty five miles from this city is a small stream known as Bear Creek, which empties into the Big Black River. For some time past strange stories have been told by the negroes, of an extraordinary animal seen near this creek. These stories were laughed at and doubted by the citizens, no one believing in any such statements. This extraordinary creature had often suddenly presented himself among the negroes in the early twilight, causing great consternation among them. He is described by the negroes as being about eight feet, each eye, in their language, "as large as a hen's egg," with no nose and upper lip, his two eye teeth as large as a man's thumb, extending down over his chin about eight inches, his right foot points to the front and the left to the rear, and the measurement of the track is just twenty three inches in length, his finger nails are about six inches long, the hair on his head—which is stiff and wiry—sweeps the ground as he walks, and is parted in the rear and brought down on each side of his singularly formed chest, which is not round or flat, but is angular, like that of a fowl. The hair on the body of this singular being is very stiff and grows to the rear, parting at the angle of the breastbone, growing back and uniting with a strong, stiff growth on his spine, which extends back about one foot like the spinal fin of a fish, or the bristles on the back of a boar, the hair on his arms are parted, and grows in the same way, making a long, thick brush on the back of the arms, extending from the shoulders to the point of his middle finger. The same peculiarity is observable on his legs.

No white person has ever seen him until recently, when he was discovered by a hunting party. Several gentlemen—acquaintances of ours—met on last Thursday week with a view of bear hunting in this swamp. They were accompanied by about 15 well trained bear dogs. They were prepared for the hunt early in the morning, and, when about commencing, their attention was attracted to an unusually large human track in the soft soil; upon examination it was discovered that the track was constantly being reversed. In an instant the stories of the negroes occurred to the party, and at once it was determined to pursue the creature which had made this track. The dogs were instantly called and encouraged to follow the track, which they did promptly. The gentlemen mounted upon good horses, found but little difficulty in keeping well up with the hounds. In a few minutes an object was presented to their view which sent a thrill to the heart of every member of the party. They had unearthed the moundsbuilder. A being—apparently human—suddenly arose from his lair, turned, and for a moment stood in silent inspection of his pursuers, and then instantly with a yell truly terrific, wheeled, and with the speed of the fastest horse, rushed away before the dogs.

This wild and exciting chase was continued for a distance of nearly ten miles, when at last the terrible monster, foaming with rage, was brought to bay upon the bank of the Big Black, and turning with a fury unparalleled, it seized the foremost dog with both hands, and, by the exercise of superhuman muscular strength, buried its long talons in the body of the howling brute, and literally tore the dog asunder. Dropping this, it instantly seized the next and sent its two immense tusks through the skull of the doomed dog. One of the hunters becoming alarmed for the safety of the party, drew his revolver and fired twice at the monster but evidently without effect other than to frighten it by the report, when, turning with a hideous yell it plunged into the river, diving and remaining under water fully five minutes, when it would suddenly spring high into the air, screaming with the voice of a regiment of soldiers. It finally swam to the opposite side, and disappeared in the neighboring forest, since which time it has only been seen twice by white persons. Several attempts have been made to capture it, but up to the present time without success.

What this strange creature is, no one can conjecture. The gentlemen with whom we have conversed represent it as a black man about six feet high, but in other respects resembling to a great degree the description given by the negroes.

The New Hampshire Election,

HOW IT LOOKED TO A MAN ON THE GROUND.

From the New York World just before the election.

New Hampshire Democrats who are now out of the State, but are entitled to vote in it, should be sure to be at the polls on Tuesday next and by their votes swell the Democratic majority that is anticipated by the Democratic Central Committee of the State.

HOW IT LOOKS TO A MAN UP A TREE

From the New York World just after the election.

The result of yesterday's election in New Hampshire will disappoint only those whose judgement have been warped by temporary political excitement so far as to anticipate the election of the Democratic candidates for State offices.

Water fowls called land birds that frequent the marshy banks of creeks around our northern lakes, have created quite a sensation recently in the western part of this State, by straying from their accustomed haunts probably in quest of food.

VERY LATEST NEWS.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS

Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 20.

The Chair submitted a memorial asking appropriations for repairing the levees on the Mississippi river. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. Sumner presented petitions of colored men from various part of Delaware asking to be secured in their rights.

After some debate between Messrs. Saulsbury and Sumner the Judiciary Committee was on motions of the latter, instructed to inquire into the authenticity of the petition.

Mr. Drake desired to have a new rule in the matter of impeachment taken up and disposed of before Monday next. He read it as follows:

When the Senate is sitting upon the trial of an impeachment, the presiding officer shall be addressed as Mr. President, and all papers submitted by either party which in their nature should be addressed in terms to the tribunal shall be addressed to it as the Senate.

Objections on the Democratic side went over.

Mr. Fessenden introduced a bill to allow drawback on articles used in the construction of vessels. Laid on the table.

Mr. Williams offered a resolution inquiring of the Secretary of the Treasury, how many clerks or employees have been removed since January, 1867: the form of letter or circulars addressed to the heads of bureaus for that purpose; how many have been appointed since and by whom; how many heretofore removed have been reappointed, from what States and by whose recommendations. Went over under objection by Buckalew.

Mr. Henderson's bill was taken up authorizing the Peace Commissioners to conclude a treaty with the Navajo Indians, and appropriating $150,000 for their removal. After a long debate the bill passed, without amendment.

The Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

House.

Mr. Boutwell, from the Impeachment Managers, reported the following resolution:

Resolved, That on the days when the Senate shall sit for the trial of the President on the articles of impeachment exhibited by the House of Representatives, the House of Representatives be notified of the same, and that the Managers on the part of the House be authorized to attend for the purpose of prosecuting.

Mr. Wood asked whether the resolution was to be understood as assuming that the House should remain in the Senate chamber for days together.

Mr. Boutwell said he did not understand there was any composition except what rested on mere courtesy by the common sense of proprieties.

Mr. Wood—Then there will be no quorum of the House during the trial?

The Speaker—There will not be, under the resolution, while the trial is pending.

Mr. Jencks suggested an amendment to the resolution providing that on the days of trial the House will meet at 11 o'clock, so as to have the morning hour.

Mr. Boutwell declined to accept the amendment, and the resolution was agreed to.

The Speaker appointed conferees on the Pension Appropriation bill.

Mr. Washburne, of Indiana, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported a bill to equalize the bounties of soldiers, sailors and marines.—Ordered printed and recommitted.

Mr. Phelps introduced a bill to allow certain drawbacks on copper in bars or ingots exported from the United States. Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, introduced a bill to provide a remedy for the loss or destruction of judgments, records or decrees appertaining to proceedings in the United States Court. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

The House resumed consideration of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill.

An amendment appropriating $15,000 for the National Arsenal at Columbus, Ohio, was rejected. After disposing of all amendments the bill passed.

The House joint resolution to regulate the tariff for freight and passengers on the Union Central Pacific Railroad and their branches, constituting the Secretary of War, Secretary of the Interior and Attorney General a Board of Commissioners to establish annually a tariff of freight and passengers on these roads, not exceeding double the average rates on roads between the Atlantic and Mississippi River north of St. Louis, was taken up.

Mr. Washburne, of Wisconsin, spoke in favor of the resolution.

Mr. Price obtained the floor, but yielded to a motion to adjourn.

The House, with the understanding that to-morrow would be devoted to general debate, adjourned.

NEW YORK.

General News.

NEW YORK, March 20.

The Herald's Washington dispatch states that within the past three days a considerable number of troops have arrived in this city and it has been rumored that several companies of infantry have reached here from Philadelphia and Jersey City, but upon inquiry, it is ascertained that troops that have come into the city are not companies but recruits for the regiments now forming at the garrison. One hundred men arrived for the Twelfth Infantry and more expected, and one hundred recruits arrived for the Twentieth U. S. Infantry. These regiments have been full up to the present time, the existing laws authorizing only sixty nine enlisted men as the maximum number of one company. Each company is now filled up to ninety-seven enlisted men and Co. K, Fifth U. S Cavalry, the only cavalry company in the garrison, is filled up to one hundred and twelve enlisted men. Several companies of infantry were ordered to the garrison of Washington yesterday and the day before, mostly from the North. These troops are intended, it is said, for the re-occupation of these forts on the Virginia side, which are yet retained by the general Government.

Various caucuses of Radical Senators have been held to consult on the Cabinet of Mr. Wade, and the following is the programme: Secretary of State, Henry Wilson, Mass., or Sam'l C. Pomeroy, of Kansas; Secretary of the Treasury, Zacharias Chandler, of Mich.; Secretary of the Interior, Wm. D. Kelly, of Penna., or John Covode; Secretary of War, E. M. Stanton; Secretary of the Navy, Charles D. Drake, of Mo.; Postmaster General, John F. Farnsworth, of Ill.; Attorney General, George F. Edmonds, of Vt., or Matt. Carpenter, of Iowa.

The Times' Washington dispatch says: Gen. Halleck will probably be ordered to succeed Gen. Hancock at New Orleans.

Butler's article of impeachment will probably be abandoned by the managers of the President's trial.

The passage of a bill by the New Jersey Legislature making the Erie Company a corporation of that State, puts a new aspect on its affairs. A regular office will be opened at Jersey City and fares reduced. Efforts are making, meantime, in the New York Legislature by the Drew party to have a bill passed legalizing the recent issue of new stock and authorizing a further issue.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, March 20, 1868—11 P. M.

Owing to an increase in the demand for the New York and Cleveland markets the Petroleum market opened firm, and during the day there was a general advance of from five to ten cents from the quotations of yesterday. There was some excitement and the inquiry at all points was good. At Petroleum Centre offers were freely made at $2 80 delivered, and there was a limited number made at $2 85. The sales made delivered were: Twelve car loads at points north of Petroleum Centre, for the New York market, at $2 65; 8.0 barrels at Titusville, for the Philadelphia market, at $2 70; twelve car loads at Gregg's Switch, for the New York market, at $2 75; twelve car loads at points north of Petroleum Centre, at $2 70; six car loads at Pioneer, for the New York market, on private terms. At Shamburg a sale of 1,600 barrels was made at $2 80 at the well.

We quote:

PITTSBURGH OIL MARKET.

PITTSBURGH, March 20

Crude—The market for Crude is firm. There is but little doing from the fact that buyers and sellers are apart in their views. We can report a sale of 1,000 barrels, seller's option for March or April, at 8¾c, which indicates an advance of ¼c. There are no sellers at 8½c. The quotation for May is 9c, and for June 9¼c, all the year, buyer's option, 11¼@12½c offered and asked.

The Refined Oil market is very quiet, but prices are not quotably lower. We quote March delivery at 23¾@24¼c; for the late months at 25c; all the year, buyer's option, 31@31½c

The oil shipped eastward yesterday amounted to 426 barrels

BOSTON PETROLEUM MARKET.

Reported Expressly for the Morning Herald

BOSTON, March 19.

The market during the last six days has been quite uniform, and rates have not varied materially. The transactions are all light, and only to fill orders, and mostly for Western brands in bond from Philadelphia. Our refineries are deeply affected by the uniform low rates on Refined oil, and all but one exception have suspended operations for the present, being abundantly able to wait for the new administration. There is at this moment a better feeling in regard to rates, and the stock on hand, including Crude and Refined, never was less than at this day. During the last four months there have been only 50 barrels of Refined oil received from New York, but principally from Philadelphia. Sales for the last three days are as follows: 300 barrels P. L. S. to Western; 150 barrels W. W.; 500 barrels P. L. S. to Western; 400 barrels L. S. 3 c. 800 barrels Boston brands in bond, 22½; barrels all $1 50, 1,100 cases in tin in bond, 53.; 500 barrels Benzine, 71 gr, 22½c; Crude, 45 gr., in bulk cars, 19½c

Empty refined barrels, $1 55.

THE

ROBERTS TORPEDO COMPANY.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The following is a brief summary of the RIGHTS AND CLAIMS OF THE ROBERTS TORPEDO COMPANY, which rights they intend to enforce against all parties violating the same:

The rights of said Company consist of three Patents issued and granted to the United States to E. A. L. Roberts for explosion of Torpedoes in oil bearing rock, together with the assignment of six other Patents for the exclusive right to use Nitro-Glycerine and other powerful explosive materials for the uses and purposes in the other Patents mentioned.

In the various legal conflicts relating to the Patents above mentioned, volumes of testimony have been taken and some of the best legal talent in the country has been employed in opposition to the Company, but after a contest of over two years, it was decided by the Supreme Court of the United States that Col. Roberts was the first to discover the practicability and invent the means of increasing the capacity of oil wells in the oil bearing rock by exploding Torpedoes therein.

That since the organization of said Company, in order to protect their rights, it has been deemed necessary to commence suits against several persons, among whom are Alexander Harkness, Albert E. Nickerson, and Kent & Mellner, (operators,) and Semple & Parke, (manufacturers.) That during the trial of said several cases, the pretended claim of William Reed and others in relation to being the discoverers and first to apply Torpedoes in oil wells, was fully investigated, and notwithstanding the said pretended claim of Reed and others, judgment was obtained in the United States Court against the several parties defendants in said suits, and permanent injunctions issued against all of them. And in order further to protect the interests of said Company, suits have been commenced in the United States Court and injunctions obtained against Frederick T. Mattson, of Titusville, Venango county, Pa., and George W. VanVliet, of Pithole, in said county. And in addition to the above suits, in which injunctions have already been obtained, in order to protect the just rights and interests of said Company, a suit has been commenced against Sherman Camp, of Reidsville, and proceedings instituted against the Reed Torpedo Company, of Reno, Pa.; William Reed, William Phillips, Ralph Pettibone and J. R. Stubbs, officers of said Reed Torpedo Company, their agents and employees and all other persons known to have purchased Torpedoes of them, or any of them.

In view of the benefits resulting from the use of Torpedoes and the liberal patronage of the community, in order that all parties may avail themselves of them, this Company is prepared to furnish Torpedoes at a price much less than heretofore.

While the Company do not court litigation they deem it proper to place these facts before the public in order that innocent parties may not be led into difficulty by false statements of individuals, or circulars of Companies, who are pirating their rights, as suits will be immediately brought against all persons, who, either use or purchase Torpedoes of any except them or their authorized agents, as their Patents cover the exclusive right to explode Torpedoes in oil wells

The Election.

Mr. Hinkly, Democrat, is elected Mayor, and as a consequence, Mr. Bates, Republican, is defeated. The Common Council will be equally divided, by the election of two Republicans and two Democrats, and the Republicans elect three of the four School Directors. The Democratic majority on Mayor is 23, and the Republican majority on School Directors is 30.

The total Republican vote cast is 307 against 302 in October. The total Democratic vote is 380 against 227 in October. Yet the more intelligent and candid of our opponents do not claim a political victory. Mr. Stewart, the Councilman elect, in the Second Ward, especially disclaims this pretence, and attributes his success to the partiality of Republican friends. But of course the more zealous Democratic partisans will insist upon the opposite conclusion. They have a right to "feel good" and we have no disposition to belittle their triumph. It expressed itself last evening in the usual demonstrations of rejoicing. The successful candidates were called out on the balcony of the American Hotel and received the congratulations of the crowd.

Scott has ceased to excite the popular wonder as he did when the celebrated Waverly novels were given to the world, half a century ago, because he has become familiar in every English household, that reads at all, but the whole world hangs enchanted over the pages, with the old admiration and delight. Every one that objects to novels in the abstract, must except Scott. He has done more to illustrate and illumine history in the days of Chivalry, of the Covenanters, or the French and English monarchies, than any one professed writer has ever done. So that no one can read him without improvement. We are glad to see cheap popular editions of this matchless Novelist issue from the press, so that a complete set of 25 volumes can be had for $6.00, or 25 cents a number; for the price of a sled or a bonnet, a young lad or lady can furnish themselves with with a library of the most select and charming reading in the wide world. Hurd is selling them rapidly. Kenilworth and Guy Mannering are the latest on his shelves.

Judicial Stock Jobbing.

The New York Evening Post, in its latest article upon the Erie Railroad war, makes the somewhat startling announcement that the supreme judges of the State have been drawn into it and are using their judicial powers for stock-jobbing purposes.

About a month ago Judge Barnard of the First Judicial District recieved a complaint from certain stock-holders of the Erie Railway, that the treasurer of that road was at the head of a conspiracy to depress the market price of its shares; that under his influence fraudulent issues of stock had been made and were still making; and that he and his fellow directors were using other scandalous means to destroy the value of the property they hold in trust. Judge Barnard at once, "enjoined," that is, by a process of the court, forbade the treasurer to act as such, and the directors to issue any new shares till further order. This injunction was regarded on Wall street as a severe check to the "bears" in the stock; and their opponents, led by the complainant in the suit, relying on this judicial order rapidly bought up the Erie shares at advancing prices.

To counteract this movement the directors of the railroad on the 7th inst., made a complaint before Judge Balcom of the Supreme Court in the Sixth District, stating that Judge Barnard had entered into a conspiracy with their adversaries in the stock market, to give control of their road to the New York Central, and that the suit pending in the Supreme Court of the First District had been contrived and was carried on jointly by the court and the complainants to aid them in this purpose. Judge Balcom hereupon granted an injunction against those complainants and against Judge Barnard himself, forbidding the further prosecution of the original suit; and so, by implication, questioning the authority of the court in the First District to act in the case. So, at least, the directors assumed to interpret the new order; for they at once issued an immense, but uncertain, amount of new stock; and the injunction of Judge Balcom, interpreted by Wall street as a judicial reinforcement of the bear interest, has been followed by a fall in Erie shares of thirteen per cent. within a week. The Evening Post says.

"If either of these injunctions has any plausible pretext for its support, the other must be an outrage. Judge Barnard's extraordinary order was, on its face, a scandalous usurpation of authority to aid a clique to effect a 'corner' in stocks, or else Judge Balcom's most extraordinary process was an insolent attack upon the power and dignity of a colleague, with a similar purpose. The one or the other is a disgrace to the bench; and the conflict between them, unless it speedily ends in the complete exposure and ruin, of one corrupt Judge, will seriously injure the credit and character of the entire judiciary."

The high character of Judge Balcom precludes the supposition that he can be the "one corrupt Judge" to whom the Post alludes. But the whole affair is of so delicate a nature that it may perhaps be best to suspend comments until the fact appear more clearly than they do at present. If they are as stated above they would seem to call for another interposition of the impeaching power of the New York Legislature.

The Tyng Case.

The clergy and laity who dissent from the action of the Court, and a minoition of the Bishop in the Tyng case will show their good sense by submitting to the rulings, and carrying their grievances and appeal to the General Episcopal Convention which has jurisdiction in such matters, and can abrogate the objectionable canon if so minded. Doubtless, this course will be taken. We shall expect to see the Episcopal church agitated with this issue until the tribunal of last resort has disposed of it, and if its decision is adverse to the protestants a schism would seem inevitable. The Tyngs may not be technically in the right, but they represent a large class of sincere and devoted churchmens who believe in a wider catholicity of ministerial labor, in connection with other religious denominations, than the present existing canon of the Episcopal church enjoins or permits

The constitution and laws of the American Protestent Episcopal Church were enacted and are subject to revision and alteration by the body called the General Convention, which meets once in three years. Consisting of all the Bishops who are in active exercise of episcopal jurisdiction, and a certain number of clerical and lay delegates from each diocese, it represents the whole body of that Church. And, by way of a wholesome conservative check, they sit in two houses and the enactment or repeal of any canon or law, requires, not only the concurrence of the two houses, but also, if it be asked, a concurrence of the three orders, of bishops, priests and laity.

THE DOCTRINE OF INSTRUCTIONS.—The Pittsburgh Gazette, one of the strongest Curtin organs in the State, takes decided ground against the resolution passed by the late State Convention empowering the Chairman of the delegation in the National Convention to cast the whole number of votes for Mr. Curtin for the Vice Presidency. The Gazette says by so doing the friends of Gov. Curtin have placed themselves in a false position, and have clearly invaded the the rights of the minority. It says "the resolution is not binding on the delegation" The Gazette refers back to the State Convention of 1860, when the friends of Andrew G Curtin strenuously resisted a resolution, adopted by the friends of Gen Cameron, binding the entire State delegation to vote as a unit for that gentleman, for the office of President in the Chicago Convention. The attempt was subsequently made at Chicago to make the whole Pennsylvania delegation support Cameron, but successfully opposed by the Curtin men, who justly held that district delegates not receiving their appointment from the State Convention, were not amenable to its instructions. The Gazette claims that "it is a poor rule that won't work both ways."

AN IMPORTANT OIL CASE.—The Cleveland Herald of Friday says: "George W. Hollister, who does business at or near the corner of Levan and Pearl streets, was brought before U. S Commissioner White on Thursday, charged with selling oil to Smith & Flinn, of Toledo, which would ignite at 60 degrees Fahrenheit, the lawful degree being 110 The Toledo firm, feeling that it was not safe to use it, called upon Revenue Inspector Rogers, who tested the oil and took measures to bring the matter before the proper authorities. Mr. Hollister claims that he sold the article for gasoline, not oil. The cask containing the fluid was labeled "Anchor Oil Co," and the bills were made out for so many gallons of "Anchor Oil." Only a partial investigation was had When Professor Cassells or some other chemist examines the fluid, the investigation will continue. The time set for resuming it is the 28th inst. Considerable interest has been manifested in the case by men who represent the light and heavy oils now being sold in this market, and it is probable those who are engaged as dealers in light oils will band together and make this a test case, for a conviction would lead to serious results in their business.

Grounds for Impeachment.

One of the proposed defences of the President is the argument that none of the offences charged in the articles of impeachment rise to the grade of an indictable crime. The assertion that this is necessary amounts to a denial of the whole theory of impeachment, of all the precedents, and all the best decisions governing the proceedings. It is to overturn the oldest and best reasons, and substitute in their stead a modern invention with the design of protecting fraud and wickedness in civil officers. The object of impeachment is not to punish crime. That duty belongs to other tribunals. When a public officer has been guilty of official misconduct that disqualifies him from holding office, the remedy is impeachment. Judge Story says:

The offences to which the power of impeachment has been and is ordinarily applied as a remedy are of a political character. Not but that crimes of a strictly legal character fall within the scope of the power, but that it has a more enlarged operation, and reaches what are aptly termed political offences growing out of personal misconduct, or gross neglect, or usurpation, or habitual disregard of the public interests in the discharge of the duties of political office. These are so various in their character, and so indefinable in their actual involutions, that it is almost impossible to provide for them by positive law. (Vol. 2, sec. 704)

The proposed line of defence is simply a legal dodge to escape a universally settled principle. There is not an opinion on the subject within the range of American jurisprudence that does not accord with this one by Story, and every impeachment trial in the country where this question has been up has affirmed the doctrine.

Death of David Wilmot.

Hon. David Wilmot died at Towanda, on Monday, 16th inst. The first public account we have of the deceased, is as one of the Representatives in Congress from Pennsylvania in 1844. He was the author of the famous proviso attached to the bill appropriating $2,000,000 to carry on the war against Mexico; a proviso which stipulated that no portion of the territory acquired by that war should be organized as slave States. From the offering of that proviso we may date the slaveholders' resolve to brake down the Federal Government. It was the first intimation the slave masters ever received that their machinations to convert the Federal Union into a slave pen would be resisted, and what presents a coincidence in this historic fact, is the point that Mr. Wilmot at the time of his offering the proviso was a staunch friend of the Polk administration, having been the only Democrat in the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress who supported the Polk Dallas policy of free trade. The struggle on the proviso was fierce and uncompromising The debate thereon remains on the pages of the Congressional Globe unexcelled in force of statesmanship, legal ability and a courageous devotion to liberty, as displayed by Mr. Wilmot and those who stood by him. John Quincy Adams, then a member of the House, frankly accorded to the author of the proviso the very highest compliment ever received by any member of that body.

Galusha A. Grow succeeded Mr. Wilmot in Congress. In 1851 the deceased was elected President Judge of the Bradford Judicial District, which position he held until 1857, when he resigned to accept the nomination for Governor by the Republican party. In 1858 he was re-elected Judge, when a disgraceful effort was made to change the Judicial District in which he presided for the express purpose of gerrymandering him out of his position.

In 1861 Mr Wilmot was elected to the United States Senate to fill the unexpired term of Simon Cameron, who was called to the Cabinet of Mr. Lincoln. At the end of two years service in the Senate, Mr. Lincoln appointed the deceased a Judge of the Court of Claims, which position he held at the time of his death.

Few men had a stronger hold on the confidence and respect of his friends and neighbors, while he lived, than David Wilmot. At the bar, as a practising lawyer, in Congress as a legislator, on the bench as a judicial officer, no man who had dealings with, or knowledge of David Wilmot ever questioned the honesty of his motives or the fairness of his acts. He possessed qualities which fitted him for the highest station in public affairs. Liberal in his views of the policy of the Government, just in his legislative course, he was eminently fitted to serve the State and Nation, having reflected credit on every station to which he was called. By the death of this man Pennsylvania has lost one of her ablest citizens, and Republican principles one of their ablest defenders.

The Public Schools of New York.

The report of V. M. Rice, Superintendent of Instruction for the State of New York for the year 1867, gives the number of school districts in the State as 11,222, and the number of school houses 11,156. Of this number 172 are built of logs, 540 of stone; 1,041 of brick, and the balance are framed. There has been during the year a steady and marked improvement in these structures. The amount expended during the year for their erection and improvement was $1,715,107, being 7½ per cent beyond the amount expended for the same purpose the previous year. The amount raised by local taxation for the support of schools was $5,101,754, and by the State tax $1,148,422 The Superintendent recommends that women should be elected to the office of School District Librarian, and adds:

"Women are now the successful teachers of nearly all the district schools, and no reason is apparent why they may not share those district offices, for which, by nature and education, they are as admirably adapted, as for the instruction of children It is therefore suggested that school visitors, consisting of three women of proper age and intelligence, be selected and appointed annually for each district."

Mr. Rice is confident that thirty thousand women thus clothed with official authority and responsibility, would gratuitously accomplish more for the schools and the redemption of idle and ignorant children, than can be effected by other machinery at a great expense.

The number of children between five and twenty-one years of age is reported at 1,076,982; the previous year the aggregate was 1,364,675—The entire attendance at educational institutions is set down as follows; Colleges, 2,190; academies, 34,661; private schools, 72,201; common schools, 949,203; total, 1,058,155

The entire expense of maintaining the schools last year was $7,683,201, an increase of $1,050,265 over the previous year. In regard to truancy, it is stated that in New York not less than forty thousand children, between the ages of five and fifteen, are vagrants and growing up in ignorance. The different charities are insufficient to reach them; and the best yearly increases in numbers Mr. Rice recommends the creation of the office of School Visitor, the term to be for one year, and the position to be held exclusively by women. Also a liberal appropriation to charitable organizations which feed, clothe, and instruct the destitute and neglected children in the large cities.

AN IMPORTANT LAW.—Among other important acts of the assembly recently approved by the Governor is one declaring the true intent and meaning of the act of April 22, 1864, "to provide for the reduction of the public debt," to be that a manufacturer or mechanic not having a store or warehouse apart from his manufactory, or workshop, for the purpose of selling goods, shall not be classified or required to pay the annual tax and license as now required by foreign dealers. An affidavit to the fact set forth is deemed sufficient evidence to authorize the appraiser of mercantile taxes to exempt such person from payment. This law will exempt a large number of small dealers who have hitherto been obliged to pay

The Quincy (Ill.) Herald gives a flattering report of the prospects of the peach crop in that vicinity.

The dentists of New York return larger incomes than the physicians, in proportion to the number.

A life insurance agent in Newburgh has insured over five hundred lives for a total of over two millions of dollars.

It costs ten cents to cook an egg at a New York restaurant. Eggs retail at five cents each, and served up for fifteen.

It is reported that a manufacturer in New York obtained an order for 200,000 thimbles, at 18 cents a dozen, from a gift enterprise, tickets 50 cents and no blanks.

The length and severity of the winter have driven the wild fowl much farther south than they commonly go. Flocks of enormous size are even found in many parts of Florida.

Twelve counties in Missouri, through which the main line of Railway to the West runs, are reported to have increased their valuation more than $135,000 since the road was built.

Captain William Adams, an old navigator of the Hudson before steamboats were invented, who acquired a comfortable fortune by his industry and steady habits during an active life, died at his residence, in Hudson street, Albany, on the 11th inst., aged ninety years. Captain Adams was a prominent member of the Baptist Church.

Cayuga Lake is reported entirely covered with ice, and in large positions frozen to the bottom Such an event has not happened before in twelve years.

Mr. Z Moore, of Lyons, Wayne county, has taken a contract to construct the Southern Boulevard in the towns of Morisania and West Farms for $900,000.

A demonstrative trial trip of twenty miles, by the steamer Island City, burning liquid fuel, was made down Boston Harbor on Saturday, several Government engineers and other scientific men feeling interested in the experiment being on board The trip was very successful, the results attained being even more satisfactory than those on the Government steamer alos.

There are great apprehensions that a landslide will occur on the route of the Hudson River Railroad, near Livingston Creek The side of the cut near that place is in a very bad condition, and looks as if it might fall at any time Should this slide occur, it would cover the road quite deeply for some distance. Watchmen are employed day and night, and trains are run by the spot very slowly

The Chicago Tribune tells an incredible story of a girl "not yet twelve years of age," who ran away from home about a year ago and who was discovered the other day, proprietress of three establishments of ill-repute, the "saloon" of which were girls between fourteen and sixteen years of age. She is said to have displayed a respectable roll of greenbacks when taken in charge.

A Library of Universal Information.

THE NEW

AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA:

A Popular Dictionary of General Knowledge.

EDITED BY,

GEORGE RIPLEY AND CHARLES A. DANA.

AIDED BY A NUMEROUS SELECT CORPS OF WRITERS, IN ALL BRANCHES OF SCIENCE ART AND LITERATURE.

In 16 large volumes, 8vo

750 double-column pages in each volume

The leading claims to public consideration which the New American Cyclopædia possesses may be thus briefly stated

"1. It surpasses all other works in the fullness and ability of the articles relating to the United States

"2. No other work contains so many reliable biographies of the leading men of this and other nations. In this respect it is far superior even to the more bulky Encyclopædia Britannica.

"3. The best minds in this country have been employed in enriching its pages with the latest data, and the most recent discoveries in every branch of manufactures, mechanics, and general science.

"4. It is a library in itself, where every topic is treated, and where information can be gleaned which will enable a student, if he is so disposed, to consult other authorities, thus affording him an invaluable key to a vast lodge [illegible]

"5. It is neatly printed, with readable type on good paper, and contains a mass of copious index

"6. Its the only work which gives anything approaching correct descriptions of cities and towns of America, or embodies reliable statistics showing the wonderful growth of all sections"

Every one that reads, every one that thinks in society, is constantly meeting with references to subjects which he seeks and yearns further into matters. In conversation, in trade, in professional life, on the farm, in the shop, personal questions are continually arising, which he has read, well read, or not can always satisfactorily answer. It is to such for reference are at hand, they are consulted, and not only is the curiosity gratified and stock of knowledge increased, but perhaps information is gained and ideas are suggested that will directly contribute to the business success of the party answer ed.

A Cyclopædia represents emphatically the work for our century and generation. This is the age of steam. No one has time to utilize among a hundred different sources for information that may need, or have the patience to hunt it out. Which Cyclopædia, in business every intelligent subject, and having the merits alphabetically arranged, not a moment's time. The number is given to found at hand. Essential, condensed, reliable of all kind in mechanics and commerce, and verified in a management of the best authorities. Moreover, with this aid, it becomes easy, without a library, to possess in all the departments of knowledge, a Commanding world in their use purposes of reference as much as immense volumes, is within the reach of all—the poor, the industrious, the businessman, and the scholar, the statesman. In a country like ours, where the intelligence may be called to respond the questions requiring intelligence and practical information, the value of such a work cannot be over-estimated.
